Sponsorship Prospectus

MIT's Premier In-Person Informatics Tournament

What is M(IT)^2?

The MIT Informatics Tournament (M(IT)²) is MIT's premier in-person competitive programming competition, hosted by MIT students for high school and college students. At our January 2024 event, we had:

900+ contestants from 12+ countries

90+ of which are IOI medalists/USACO finalists/CodeForces GMs

350+ contestants had advanced competitive programming experience

170+ contestants had no prior competitive programming experience

17 problems specially curated by our brilliant Problems team

We hope to have even more contestants (beginner and pro) next year!

Why Sponsor Us?

By sponsoring M(IT)^2, you'll allow us to offer contests and workshops that bring together and expand the competitive programming community.

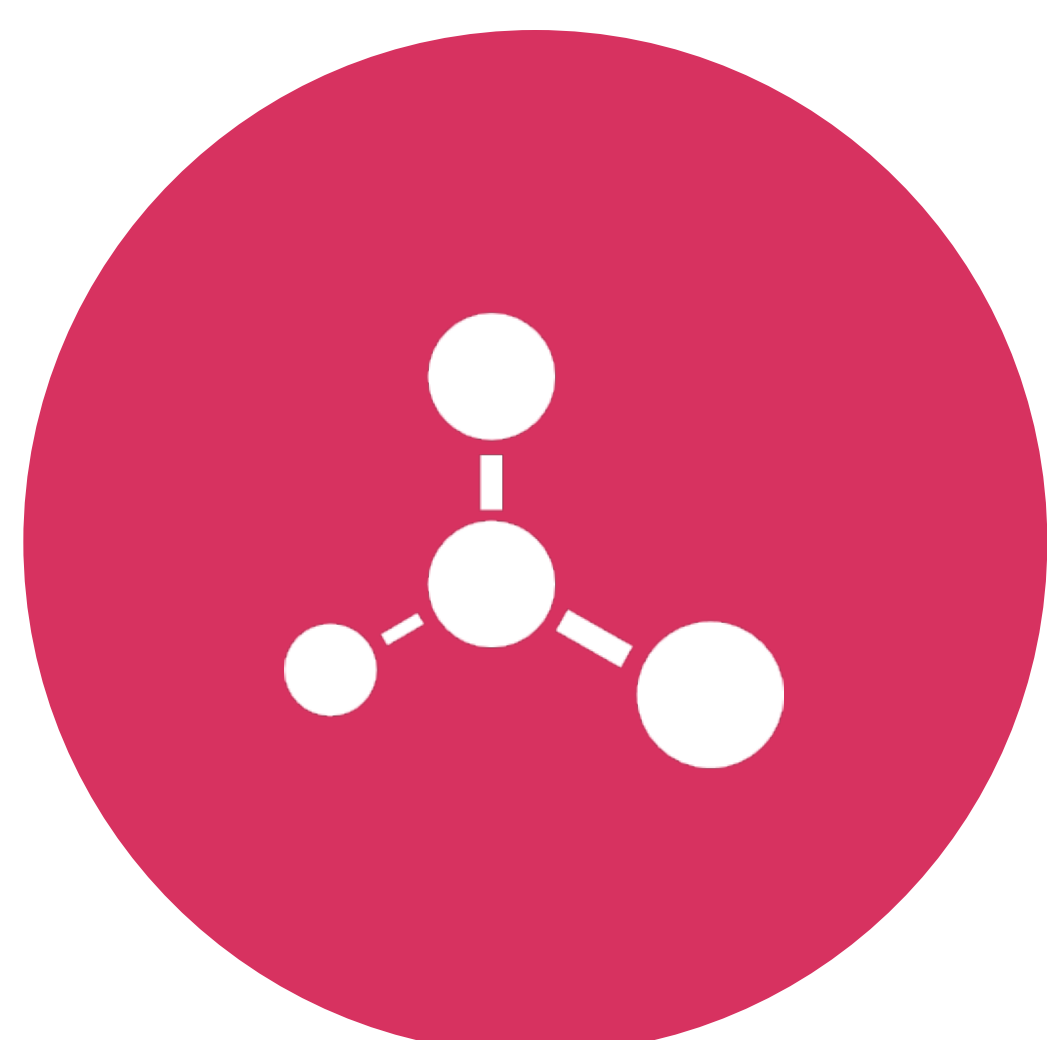

You'll also have the opportunity to share your products with motivated and highly skilled computer science students, gain access to hundreds of resumes, and extend internship opportunities to our top contestants!

How Can You Help?

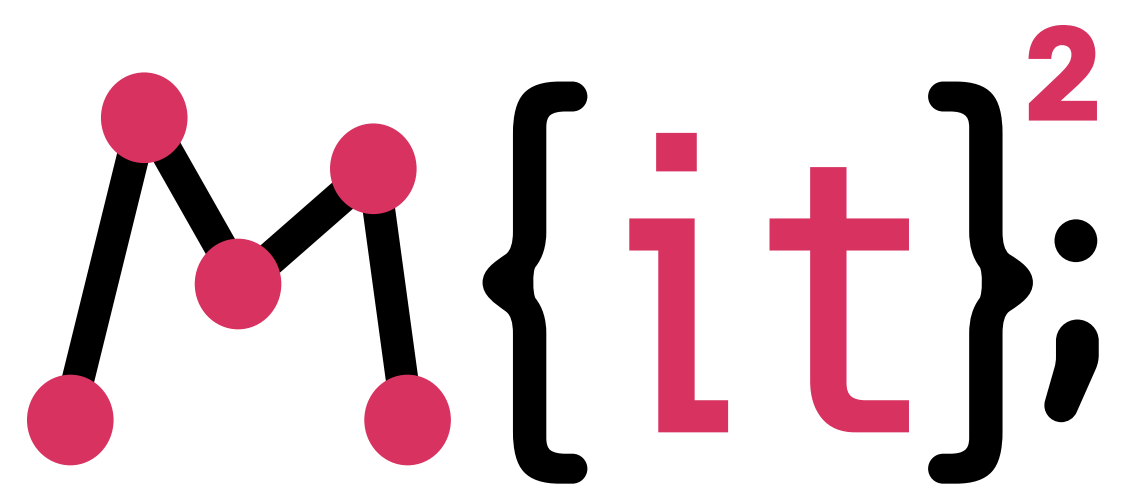

MONETARY SPONSORSHIP

Your organization will receive a suite of benefits based on our list on the next page. Your generous donation will help us cover costs for the venue, food, prizes, swag, and travel reimbursements. In total, we are seeking ~$17,000 to ensure a thriving event.

SPONSOR OPPORTUNITIES

M(IT)^2 reaches beyond just our tournaments. You can have your organization interview our top winning teams, extend internship opportunities to fitting participants, and stay connected with our network of passionate programmers even after the closing ceremony!
